Telework and Modified Schedules Are Not Reasonable Accommodations If the Employee Cannot Perform Their Essential Functions

"In the context of the increase in telework during the pandemic and burgeoning requests from employees to continue telework as a reasonable accommodation, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit issued a case confirming the point that an accommodation, including telework or a modified schedule, is not reasonable if the employee is unable to perform the essential functions of their job." Court Finds Elevated Risk of COVID-19 Complications is Not a Covered Disability Under Federal Law

"On September 28, 2021, Venable LLP attorneys Brian Clark and Allison Gotfried secured for a client what could prove to be a far-reaching ruling on the issue of whether individuals with an underlying condition that places them at an "elevated risk of complications" from exposure to COVID-19, without more, are qualified as "disabled," entitling them to job accommodations under the Federal Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Rehabilitation Act)." The Employee Is Not Entitled to Their Preferred Accommodation – Only a Reasonable One

“A recent case is a good reminder to employers that, while the Americans with Disabilities Act requires employers to provide disabled employees with reasonable accommodations to enable them to perform their essential job functions or enjoy the privileges and benefits of employment, the choice of accommodation is the employer’s – not the employee’s.” Full Article

Practical Strategies for Manufacturers Managing COVID-19 Testing, Vaccine Mandates

“Manufacturing employers continue to feel the brunt of emerging and evolving trends related to the COVID-19 pandemic: workplace safety, labor shortages, absence management, remote technology, and employee retention — just to name a few. On the workplace safety front, mask mandates, testing protocols, and vaccine issues continue to make headlines, including President Joe Biden’s September 9, 2021, announcement regarding vaccine and testing requirements for companies with 100 or more employees.” Full Article

Handling Requests for Religious Exemptions from Mandatory Vaccination Policies

“Employers implementing mandatory COVID-19 vaccine policies are facing an avalanche of requests for exemptions as religious accommodations, far more than for medical exemptions. Fortunately, while employers are generally obligated to explore accommodations for requests based on a sincerely held religious belief, they are not necessarily obligated to grant exemptions.” Full Article

New Wellness Program Guidance Issued for COVID-19 Vaccine Premium Surcharges

“As the number of people receiving a COVID-19 vaccine has decreased, employers have tried to find ways to incentivize their employees to get vaccinated. While some employers have imposed COVID-19 vaccine requirements, others have searched for alternative methods to motivate employees to receive the vaccines. One method some employers have considered is imposing a surcharge on health insurance premiums for employees and their dependents who are unvaccinated. The Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Labor, and the Department of the Treasury issued guidance this week that addresses COVID-19 vaccine premium surcharges.” Full Article
